The Capitol Symphonic Youth Orchestras (TCSYO) present: "Autumn Sounds" concert - Sunday, November 16, 2014

ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA: The best young musicians in the Washington, DC area bring old and new classics to life as The Capitol Symphonic Youth Orchestras (TCSYO) presents its "Autumn Sounds" concert on Sunday, November 16, 2014 at 2:00 PM. Led by Artistic Music Director and Conductor Dr. Cheri Collins, students will perform a wide range of works, including Borodin's "Polovetsian Dances No. 17," Smetana's Overture from "The Bartered Bride" and O'Neill & Kinkel's "Christmas Eve/Sarajevo 12/24." "So much of the magic behind TCSYO comes from the energy and passion that Collins exudes" writes Northern Virginia magazine.

The concert takes place at the Rachel M. Schlesinger Concert Hall and Arts Center on the Alexandria Campus of Northern Virginia Community College, 4915 East Campus Lane. Ticket prices are $15 for adults, $10 for seniors and $5 for students. Come see why TCSYO is fast becoming a premier youth orchestra and leader in music education in the Washington, DC area!

TCSYO is a Fairfax County based non-profit organization and its mission is to provide a creative environment where young musicians from Virginia, Maryland and the District come together to rehearse and perform. Now in its fourth year, TCSYO offers area students the chance to take their skills to a higher level with both Symphonic and Chamber Orchestras as well as a third orchestra, Prelude, scheduled to launch next season.

The renowned Dr. Collins, a specialist in training young musicians, brings energy, passion and international experience to TCSYO. With her magnetic personality and inspirational approach, she brings out the best in her students. "The performance level of our musicians is amazing, and so is their commitment to these moving musical works," says Dr. Collins. "The range of music in our fall concert is inspiring and shows you just what these young musicians are capable of."
